The Year of YES
2018 Annual Report to the Community
2018: The Year of Yes

It’s been a whirlwind of a year at HASA. Our team has witnessed a dramatic increase in HASA’s need to advocate for, and to serve, individuals with communication challenges.

One commitment I made (and I asked my team to make along with me) was to spend the year saying “yes.” That commitment to YES has led us down an exciting road of new partnerships and fostered a renewed commitment to HASA’s mission.

Saying YES led to HASA providing 500 hearing screenings to prekindergarten students in Baltimore City. Saying YES resulted in HASA staff attending more than 100 community outreach events where we reached more than 20,000 people. Saying YES led to the development of a new model for on-site sign language classes for community groups and area businesses.

As you read through HASA’s accomplishments and results for the year, know that it happened because you also said “yes.” YES to supporting our work to build an inclusive, accessible society where everyone is able to understand—and be understood.

In September, we hosted HASA’s very first Silent Disco, followed closely by A Very MOD affair in November to commemorate the 60th anniversary of Gateway School.

In 2018, HASA special events had more than 500 attendees who contributed more than $50,000 to HASA’s mission.

More than 500 American Sign Language (ASL) students and community members attended classes and ASL storytelling events at HASA this year.

Four ASL storytelling events were scheduled throughout the year, in conjunction with our offering of on-campus and community-based classes in sign language and Deaf awareness.

Partnership is key to accomplishing our goals to benefit the entire community. HASA staff and volunteers provided hearing screenings to 500 students in Head Start programs at the Y of Central Maryland.

Our community education team provided children’s librarians throughout Baltimore with tools to provide sensory-friendly storytelling for children with autism.

Miriam Zadek was awarded a lifetime achievement award in volunteerism from Governor Larry Hogan for her work to make communication more accessible for Maryland citizens who are deaf or hard of hearing.

EXPANSION

HASA opened two new classrooms through a Prekindergarten Expansion grant from the Maryland State Department of Education to serve 4 and 5 year olds to prepare them for kindergarten in their local school systems.

Opening our doors to a new group of students nearly doubled our student population and provided a rich foundation in language and literacy for a new cohort of Gateway alumni!

INCLUSION

HASA hired three young adults with autism to work in its various programs. Joey (a graduate of Gateway School) and Dylan manage the school lunch program and Brian (another Gateway alumnus) helps to digitize clinical patient records.

Through a partnership with Itineris, we also provide job training through a volunteer program with two other young adults with autism.

Foundations support allowed for an upgraded security system for student, patient, and staff safety. Additionally, we replaced our phone system with more accessible technology and ensured future growth and data security with a server replacement.

Donors also supported upgrades to our building to create meeting spaces that are more accessible to the Deaf community.

LEGISLATION
At the federal level, HASA presented policy statements in support of the Over-the-Counter Hearing Aid Act.

Locally, HASA supported the provision of hearing aid coverage for Medicaid patients over the age of 21 and spoke out against a license plate designation for Deaf/Hard of Hearing individuals in Maryland.

PREVENTION
The number one customer complaint for restaurants is noise. Many people with hearing loss avoid dining out altogether.

Your support provided the tools to teach restaurant teams to better serve diners who are hard of hearing at more than a dozen restaurants in conjunction with Restaurant Week(s) in Baltimore and Washington, DC.
